LEG BADLY FRACTURED.

Large Rock Rolled Upon Employee on Railroad Job Today.

An Italian employee of the Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins corporation, 45 years old and employed as a pitman with the steam shovel, suffered a compound, comminuted fracture of both bones of his right leg this morning, a large rock rolling upon his leg. He was removed to Memorial hospital, where he was attended by Dr. Harry P. Greene. It is a question to be determined in 10 days or more whether the leg can be saved, so badly were the bones crushed. Several of his fellow workmen yelled to him as they saw the rock falling, but owing to the noise of the shovel he did not hear their warning cries in time to escape.

RED MEN ARE IN SESSION

Party of Over 200 Attended Supper in Wigwam and Dance in Armory

GREAT SUN SESSION OF GREAT COUNCIL

Pleasing Entertainment Provided by Quonkietut Tribe — Addresses by Prominent Members of the Order—Business Session with Election.

Nearly 200 members of the Improved Order of Red Men and Daughters of Councils, including many high in the councils of the order in state and nation, enjoyed last evening to the utmost the banquet and ball given in honor of the visiting delegates and officers as the introduction to the eighth annual session of the great council of Vermont. Quonkietut tribe of Brattleboro and the auxiliary organization of Daughters of Pocahontas provided the entertainment last evening preliminary to the opening of the great council in business session today and compliments were freely extended to them for the completeness of the entertainment.

All the afternoon the delegates had been receiving Brattleboro from other parts of the state and officers from neighboring states, and automobile rides and boat rides on the river were the order of entertainment until the call to the banquet sounded at 7 o'clock. In the wigwam of the local tribe tables for 120, tastefully decorated with flowers and laden with good things to eat, provided for the majority of those present, but many of the local members were forced to wait for the second table. But there was ample for all of delicious chicken pie, mashed potato, peas, eekery, rolls, cold meats, coffee and cake, and it was well and promptly served. Leisler's orchestra of six pieces furnished music during the supper and the feature was the singing. Alston Dugan of When Uncle Joe Played Rag on de Old Banjo. Mr. Dugan was obliged to respond to encore after encore.

Judge E. W. Gibson was toastmaster and before seats were taken at the tables he was introduced by Captain Herbert E. Harris. Judge Gibson said it was a great privilege and pleasure for him to welcome the guests to Vermont and to a town we boast of as the most beautiful in this state of freedom and unity. Here we do more for charity and character than elsewhere and no order accomplishes its great work unless it works out in civil life the principles taught in the lodge room.

Speaking of Vermont, he said that the red men ranged the mountains in the days of what is the little Republic of Guilford which was maintained for 13 years, and here in this state the first blood of the Revolution was shed. It is fitting, he said, that the Red Men should be strong in such a state, a state in which freedom, friendship and charity, the three great principles of the order had always been paramount.

Fred O. Downs of Boston, great senior saganore of the great council of the United States, was introduced as the first speaker in place of W. M. Saunders of Boston, great keeper of wampum of the great council of the United States. He recalled the fact that in 1889, when the Vermont Red Men were then under the jurisdiction of Massachusetts, here at the time it was great sachem. It was desired to work the four degrees of the order at White River Junction and were met with the proposition from Quonkietut tribe to work all four degrees. The offer was accepted and he said that those present had never before seen the four degrees so well worked by one tribal degree team. Since that time the Daughters of Pocahontas branch has been added to the local tribe, and the wisdom of that move was evident by the gathering present.

He then discussed the founding of the order upon the history of the aboriginal natives of the country and said that many consider it strange that a modern order should be founded upon the customs of savages. Those of the order who are members of other fraternal organizations consider the degree work as beautiful and impressive as that of any similar organization which is founded upon tradition. The degrees are not of a hazy character, but are dignified and teach a valuable lesson.

There are now in the United States some 600,000 members of the order, men and women, and one of the cardinal principles essential to membership is belief in a Great Spirit. Without such belief admittance is denied. In 10 years heroic work has been done by the order in taking under its protection over 2000 children, orphans of members, who have been educated, clothed and fed until they are 16 years of age. In the last 25 years the order has grown from 50,000 members to over 500,000 and the million mark will be passed in the near future.

A. B. Calder, a past great sachem of Mattapan, Mass., who is 78 years of age and active in the order, was introduced and paid a compliment to the memory of Col. C. A. Miles, one of the charter members of Quonkietut tribe, as was the speaker, Mr. Calder told of his membership in Quonkietut tribe 23 years ago and of his activity in the order which resulted in the institution of nine different tribes in Vermont during his incumbency of offices in the local tribe. He closed by saying that the order was founded by the Sons of Liberty when they, garbed as Indians, held a tea party in Boston harbor.

Great Sachem F. E. Marshall of Vermont said that there are five trails leading to tribal membership and he likened them to the thumb and fingers of a hand. The thumb represents those who seek to increase their business and social acquaintances and to obtain empty honors by membership. This is the trail of selfishness.

The second he likened to the little finger, representing those who are not qualified to hold office and in consequence become knockers and kickers, who seek to discourage activity in others. This leads to non-payment of dues and to suspension.

The third represents those who turn out to meetings upon special invitation or when there is something out of the ordinary planned which serves as an additional and special attraction.

The fourth represents those who attend meetings regularly, and pay their dues, but who sit back in the corners and listen, who draw their full benefits when sick and would take more if it were possible to get more.

The fifth, represented by the middle finger as the longest, straightest and best trail to follow, he said by possibly 10 per cent of the membership and represents that proportion who work in the interests of the order and seek to build it up in point of membership and usefulness to mankind.

James Tattersall, great saganore of New Hampshire, spoke briefly upon the principles of the order and of its strength in the neighboring state, and Past Sachem Fred C. Davis of Springfield, who was one of the delegates when the great council of Vermont was organized eight years ago, told of that time and said that every tribe that was then represented is today alive and others have been added. Referring to the introduction by the chairman in which he had said that Springfield always liked to rap Brattleboro, the speaker said that was true and warned Brattleboro that while it got cheap electric power a little earlier than did Springfield, the smaller town now had it and was reaching out for industries. He sounded the warning that Brattleboro had "got to go some" to hold the lead in a few years.

J. F. McCarthy, great senior saganore of Vermont, and John Story, great chief of records of the great council of Vermont, were the last speakers, speaking very briefly.

Adjournment was then taken to the armory, where dancing was immediately started and where a large number of invited guests were awaiting the arrival of the members of the order.

Leisler's orchestra furnished music for the dancing. Over 1000 participated in the grand march, which was led by Captain Herbert E. Harris and Mrs. Charles Brockington. The reception committee consisted of J. E. Melton, E. L. Parker, Charles Brockington, Fred Miner, G. A. Twitchell, John Kall; souvenir committee, C. R. Simonds, H. L. Clark, George Bonam; dance committee, Stillman Graves, Fred Clark, John O. Tucker, John Banden, Clifton B. Timson; entertainment committee, E. L. Parker, Charles Brockington, George S. Knight, C. R. Simonds, Dr. E. R. Lynch; supper committee, Herbert Bogle.

The business session of the great council opened this morning at 9 o'clock, Great Sachem F. E. Marshall of Beecher Falls presiding, and all of the great chiefs were at their stations. Distinguished visitors were Fred O. Downs of Boston, great senior saganore of the great council of the United States, and Past Great Saganore A. P. Calder of Mattapan, Mass., who were received with the honors due their rank. Thirteen different tribes of the state were represented and about 30 past chiefs were admitted to the council.

The following officers were elected at the afternoon session: Great Sachem, J. F. McCarthy of Springfield, Mass.; great senior saganore, A. E. Humphrey of Lyndonville; great junior saganore, Alex. Ross of Barre; great prophet, F. E. Marshall of Beecher Falls; great chief of records, J. F. Osborne of East Barre; great keeper of wampum, E. L. Parker of Brattleboro. The degree team of Quonkietut tribe will confer the adoption degree on a class of pale-faces tonight.

Northfield Woman Killed on Railroad Track.

NORTHFIELD, Aug. 21.—Mrs. Robert Thompson of Northfield Falls was struck by a locomotive on the Central Vermont tracks Tuesday at about 11 o'clock and was instantly killed.

Mrs. Thompson came to the village on shopping errands and was returning home, walking on the tracks. She was not out of the village limits when a locomotive and caboose came along and struck her. The body was mangled almost beyond recognition. No one saw the accident and there is no explanation why she failed to get off the tracks except that she was very deaf. The body was removed to Hatch's undertaking rooms.

Mrs. Thompson is survived by a husband, who works at the Davis mills in Northfield Falls, and one daughter. She was about 45 years of age.

Once Upon a Time

ONCE there was really no way out of it for the farmer. Plodding home from the field with his team at close of day, he saw before him the waiting small jobs about the house, barn, and yard, jobs that took time and labor, and never seemed to end. There was water to be pumped, wood to be sawed, various machines to be run by hand. It was a dreary prospect—but that was once upon a time. Today he lets the engine do it.

Buy from the I H C engine line. I H C engines are built right and consistently all through, to work efficiently for years. Whether you want it for sawing, pumping, spraying, electric light plant, for running separator, or repair shop, or for all sorts of tiresome energy-wasting small farm jobs, you have need of an
